

Sprint 3 Overview

During Sprint #3, I had the privilege of being part of the design team, where my primary responsibilities involved working with CSS and HTML. This sprint was particularly challenging for our team as none of us were well-versed in CSS initially. However, we tackled this obstacle head-on by leveraging online resources like W3Schools to learn and implement the necessary techniques. Despite the initial difficulties, we managed to overcome the CSS learning curve and achieve the desired outcome.

Throughout the sprint, we incorporated a significant amount of original imagery to enhance the visual appeal of the revamped platform. We started with rough drafts and sketches to capture our initial ideas and brainstormed as a team to refine our vision. With the aid of our newfound CSS knowledge, we carefully designed and implemented the necessary styles and layouts to create an engaging and interactive user interface.

Overall, Sprint #3 was a valuable learning experience for our design team, as we not only acquired new skills but also demonstrated our ability to adapt and overcome challenges to create a compelling and functional product.

Sprint 3 Deliverable

Our team's primary deliverable for this sprint was a fully functional and redesigned version of the Spotify Wrapped, tailored specifically for our fictional event called SXSE.

Our concept for this revamp centered around the idea of "diving" deeper into the ocean and immersing oneself further into the event experience. Given that SXSE was a music festival, our key focus was on showcasing the music aspect of the event.

By utilizing HTML and CSS, we were able to create a captivating visual aesthetic that aligned with the theme of diving deeper into the ocean. The final product showcased personalized music recommendations, artist highlights, and a visually stunning representation of the user's event experience. Our team's collaborative effort, perseverance, and dedication to learning resulted in a successful Sprint #3, where we successfully delivered a polished and user-friendly music festival experience tailored for SXSE attendees.
